The Hawaiian Mint Proudly Announces
That Two Strictly Limited Issues of Historically Significant Coins Are Now Available To Selected Collectors

Aloha!

In 1883, when the Hawaiian Islands were still an independent kingdom, King Kalakaua I authorized the only legal tender coinage ever issued by his island nation.

The coins of that original issue are now among the most sought after in the world. So few remain... mostly in private collections... that collectors consider them priceless.

Now, The Hawaiian Mint proudly announces its commemorative minting of Gold Centennial Crown and Silver Centennial Dala will be made available to the general public in a strictly limited issue.

Only 1000 Gold Crowns - Just 10,000 Silver Dalas

The issue will be strictly limited to only 1000 Gold Centennial Crowns and 10,000 Silver Centennial Dalas. Each coin will be accompanied by an individually numbered Certificate of Authenticity from The Hawaiian Mint. When the limited issue is complete, the dies will be destroyed and no more coins will ever be struck.

The Gold Centennial Crown and Silver Centennial Dala should not be confused with replicas of other coins currently being advertised because:

- Each Gold Crown and Silver Dala is reproduced in full size. The Gold Crown measures 34mm (about $1\frac{1}{3}$ inches) in diameter. The Silver Dala is 39mm (about $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches) in diameter. These are not thumbnail miniatures.
- The Gold Crown contains one troy ounce of .999 Fine Gold. The Silver Dala similarly contains one troy ounce of .999 Fine Silver. These coins are not plated... they contain a full ounce of precious metal... not just a few grams.
- Each coin is struck slowly and carefully on proof-life blanks at The Hawaiian Mint. Each coin is carefully packaged and inspected to ensure proof quality coins.

- The dies used to strike each coin were meticulously recreated by the revolutionary EDM Process from the original designs done more than 100 years ago by the renown Charles Barber.
- These coins are likely to become valuable collectors items in the years to come and it is possible that their value could substantially increase once the limited issue is complete and the number of coins available to collectors on the open market begins to decrease.

The King And His Coins

The story of the original coins begins when special representatives of the King of Hawaii asked Charles Barber of the U.S. Mint in Philadelphia to design a set of legal tender coinage for the kingdom. Barber had designed many U.S. coins and his name is today associated with whole series of 19th century coins.

Barber's designs were submitted to the King and approved. The U.S. Mint in Philadelphia struck six proof sets in September, 1883. Coins earmarked for circulation in the islands were struck at the Mint in San Francisco.

The coins remained in circulation even after the monarchy was deposed eleven years later. Stanford B. Dole was named the first and only President of the Republic of Hawaii in 1893.

Annexation and Redemption

In 1898, Hawaii was annexed by the United States and was formally organized as a territory two years later. On January 14, 1903, the legal tender currency of the Hawaiian Islands was redeemed at par value by the U.S. Government. More than 90% of the coins still in circulation were traded in for American currency. The few coins that were left were turned into belt buckles and souvenirs. Today only a small number of the original coins remain and these are eagerly sought by collectors from all over the world.

The Silver Centennial Dala and its companion piece, The Gold Centennial Crown are also likely to become highly sought-after coins by collectors all over the world because of the strictly limited issue mintage that has been established for each coin.

The Hawaiian Mint will be making these coins available to the general public in stores and shops but before they do, they are offering selected collectors this opportunity to obtain the early, low-numbered issues.
